STERLING HEIGHTS, MI, October 10, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Most dentist appointments have to be scheduled a week or more in advance -- some busy offices don't have availability for months. But some patients can't wait that long; in fact in some cases the patient can't afford to wait a moment longer due to an urgent dental emergency. Dr. Michael L. Young of Forever Young Dentistry understands these needs, which is why he offers emergency dentistry at his office in Sterling Heights.

Common dental emergencies emerge due to unexpected injuries due to fights or contact sports. A cracked tooth can become infected if it isn't corrected as soon as possible. In some cases a chipped tooth can be re-bonded. Some dental emergencies are due to patients delaying dental care for months or even years until it finally becomes too painful to bear. In these cases the patient cannot wait to schedule an appointment in the future.

It is estimated that about one in six American experience a dental emergency each year. Some patients go to the hospital emergency room when they have an urgent oral problem, but this can be expensive and a qualified dentist with good bedside manner isn't always immediately available. Going to a dentist's office for an emergency visit related to oral care is the preferred course of action for a number of reasons.

Even worse than those two options is not going to the dentist at all, and trying to ignore the issue. Dental complications not only affect the mouth -- infections and gum disease can also have an affect on a patient's overall health if it goes untreated. Sterling Heights emergency dentist Dr. Young doesn't want patients in distress to choose the latter option, which is why he offers convenient emergency services.

"Patients who are experiencing oral discomfort don't have to feel helpless or suffer in silence. Help is a phone call away," he says. "We have an awesome team and welcoming energy at Forever Young Dentistry."
