Written by Australian Business

SANTA CRUZ, CA, October 10, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Patients cannot always anticipate an injury to the face or mouth, or severe tooth pain. For this reason, Dr. John Baron is pleased to offer emergency dentistry in Santa Cruz for his patients. When an emergency occurs, patients can now call Dr. Baron at (831) 426-9200. Dental emergency appointments are usually seen the same day, as Dr. Baron, dentist in Santa Cruz, works with his patients to provide the care they need, when they need it.

"Many of us, at one time or another, confront a minor dental emergency such as a children's knocked out tooth, or a bitten lip or tongue. Common sense and remaining calm should get you through most of these dental emergencies. However, when experiencing any symptoms that impair your normal activities, I encourage you to visit my office for immediate emergency care," said Dr. John Baron, Santa Cruz dentist.

If patients suffer a dislodged dental crown, Dr. Baron encourages them to call his office to make an appointment as quickly as possible. In the meantime, patients should slip the crown back in place, securing it with toothpaste or denture adhesive until they can get to his emergency dentistry office in Santa Cruz. Patients are urged to never use glue to affix a crown, especially not any type of superglue. In the case of a lost filling, Dr. Baron informs patients to simply place sugarless gum in the filling hole until they can get to the office for a permanent repair.

For traumatic injuries, patients should rinse their mouth with a mild salt-water solution. They should also stop any bleeding with moistened gauze or a tea bag by applying pressure to the area injured. Pain can be controlled and swelling reduced with a cold compress. For extreme bleeding that won't stop, large cuts possibly requiring stitches, or intense, unbearable pain, Dr. Baron, Santa Cruz, CA dentist, urges patients to contact him and visit their local hospital emergency room.

When an emergency occurs, patients should contact Dr. John Baron immediately from proper emergency dentistry care in Santa Cruz.
