

BARCELONA, SPAIN, October 12, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Peter Styles, Senior Vice-President of Mergers and Acquisition, The Corliss Group, has been invited to attend the Citi-sponsored Global Financial Conference scheduled from November 19 to 21, 2013 at the Conrad Hotel, Hong Kong. The unique conference promises to bring together global financial corporations and international investors in an inspiring and thought-provoking setting of keynote speeches, panel discussions and themed fireside chats.

Admittedly, today's global market is characterized by a growing complexity that requires more dynamic financial management solutions. The conference aims to assemble industry players in order to discuss, appreciate and, if possible, resolve pressing issues in global finance.

THE CORLISS GROUP hopes to make use of this opportunity to bring into the conference table its unique expertise in alternative investment strategies and traditional asset management. Joining the conference will greatly enhance the firm's capability to provide financial management assistance in a wide array of investments, such as hedge funds, funds-of-funds, private equity and real estate.

THE CORLISS GROUP is established on the unique mission of addressing the increasing need for alternative investments among high net-value and smaller institutional investors in today's present vibrant markets. In sourcing equities, hedge fund, private equity, fund-of-funds and real estate ventures, the Group's experienced managers develop offerings that are suitable for a vast range of qualified investors.

With its extensive track record across alternative investments, but not limited to these markets, THE CORLISS GROUP has established a broad platform of offerings to provide discriminating investors' growing demands in an increasingly multifaceted investment environment. As an independent investment advisory company with a number of affiliates to support it, THE CORLISS GROUP is in the best position to develop effective strategies that are founded on investment principles that have been proven through years of success.

THE CORLISS GROUP has had many successful investments deals designed for institutions and qualified private client-investors. Such offerings the firm places through U.S. brokerage firms, private banks, financial planning firms, registered investment advisors and family offices.

Efficiently selecting qualified Investment Managers to handle clients' accounts is at the root of the firm's philosophy. THE CORLISS GROUP's excellent capability to recognize asset management aptitude in the field of alternative investments has continually confirmed their capacity to function well in this market area. Candidates are initially sourced out through a network of strategic partners, long-standing relationships and referrals from managers, trading desks, service providers and other potential sources.

The firm's due-diligence process is thorough and methodical. Due diligence is viewed as a potent mix where qualitative and quantitative information is collated and analyzed. Issues such as manager reputation, integrity, personal commitment and potential conflicts of interest are scrupulously and impartially evaluated.

How a manager's firm is structured, staffed and remunerated are significantly vital considerations in our evaluation. We constantly look over the manager's investment as well as its organizational skills to find out potential sources of problems.

As an ardent advocate of the great value of education, THE CORLISS GROUP believes that education plays a great role in its investment experience. The Firm is committed to partner with investors and advisors who have an understanding of the potential benefits and risks of alternative investments and are, therefore, equipped to make well-informed investment decisions. Joining the Global Financial Conference 2013 will be a major thrust toward improving the company's capability to provide efficient investment assistance and support in a fast-changing global market.
