While septic tanks are designed for long-term use, most systems fail prematurely due to improper maintenance and neglect. Thorough cleaning and inspection helps ensure that any small problems that could have developed are caught before becoming more costly issues later. Waiting too long before getting your tank serviced can lead to a horrible chain reaction from sludge build-up to system failure to unpleasant smell, ground moisture, and nonfunctional home drainage.

Jones Septic has been providing prompt service, reasonable rates, and free estimates to residents and businesses in the Hudson Valley. They have the equipment and expertise needed to handle any situation in a timely and courteous manner. Jones prides itself on working directly with customers to determine the best schedule for semi-annual maintenance and emergency problems. After 60 years in business, you can be assured Jones Septic is the best to help you service and repair your septic tank.
