We're excited to have Hanger Clinic join us. Sometimes little acts of kindness can change a person's life in ways that are difficult to explain.

IRVING, TX, October 14, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- As we follow Stephanie, we learn about the many difficulties a new amputee faces every day, from readjusting to a new body to learning to deal with society as they go out in public. Through intimate interviews, we get to know her family and the sacrifices each of them must make in order to help and accommodate the needs of their loved one. We're excited and grateful to have Hanger Clinic join us. The company will be donating their clinical expertise, and working with prosthetic manufacturers to donate components to custom-design and fit Stephanie Ramirez with a hip disarticulation prosthetic leg. This device will provide Stephanie with increased mobility, allowing her to have a more productive and easier life.

Founded 152 years ago in 1861 by James Edward Hanger, the first amputee of the American Civil War, Hanger Clinic is headquartered in Austin, Texas. The company owns and operates in excess of 730 patient care clinics in 45 states and the District of Columbia, with more than 4,700 employees, including over 1,200 clinicians. With 43 locations in Texas, Hanger Clinic provides patients with convenient, consistent, high quality care. For more information on Hanger, visit www.hanger.com.

"We value Hanger Clinic's commitment to Stephanie and our documentary," remarked Elizabeth Hong, producer for My Fight. Hanger Clinic's sponsorship will not only provide the opportunity to show our audience from beginning to end how this device is made but also what it takes to walk with a prosthetic leg."
