CHARLESTON, SC, October 15, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Charleston, South Carolina BBQ joint Queology knows a lot about food competitions and cook outs. In fact, one of the main reasons that Queology was able to quickly grow in popularity is due to the founders' adamant participation in several BBQ competitions throughout the United States. While previous contests have allowed this restaurant to introduce new Carolina BBQ flavors and become an award-winning brand, Queology looks forward to participating once again in the Kansas City Barbeque Society State Championship BBQ Cook Off this weekend at the 13th Annual Squealin' on the Square event in Laurens, South Carolina.

According to the event's website, Squealin' on the Square is not only a chance for visitors to enjoy top-notch Carolina BBQ, but also an opportunity to explore an award-winning tourism and promotional event. In a recent press statement Queology adds, "Having participated in Squealin' on the Square previously, we are proud to return to take part in this exceptional cultural event. The turnout is always great, the crowd is always festive and everyone there loves to explore the finer tastes of barbeque. If you want to try really great, local flavors, this is the event to attend."

Based on the 2012 KCBS State Championship Cook Off results from the 12th Annual Squealin' on the Square, Queology was noted for its impressive introduction to the BBQ community. Winning fourth place for brisket and 14th in overall rankings, this inventive BBQ restaurant showed Charleston pride representing some of the greatest flavors that the Lowcountry has to offer.

While the Charleston BBQ team has outranked competitors at this event and others in the past, they look forward to bringing a new sense of culinary rivalry to the cook off this year. In its press statement the restaurant explains, "Although rankings are certainly an honor at these kinds of events, it is also a pleasure to watch BBQ fans try out our new and signature flavors. It's a great way to connect with the local community and represent Charleston in a festive light."

Those looking to attend the 13th Squealin' on the Square can do so for free October 4th and 5th, and enjoy not only BBQ tastings, but also a wide range of other cultural attractions. For instance, this year's event will feature classic car shows, an antique tractor show, music, festival rides, a petting zoo, as well as fireworks. For those who are unable to attend, but still looking to try authentic Carolina BBQ, Queology operates year-round in the Market St. area of Charleston serving up a wide range of sauce styles to pair perfectly with delicious ribs, wings, sandwiches and other choice meats.

Located in the City of Charleston, South Carolina, Queology remains a top favorite among adventurous diners looking for exceptional lowcountry barbeque. Established by founding members Russ and Matt, this restaurant was built on their efforts to popularize the brand by participating in several cooking competitions since 2001 throughout the southeast. Today, serving up more than 25 years of experience, the Queology team is equipped to serve moist and tender meat that continues to win over diner taste buds on a regular basis. Prized among both visitors and locals, this barbecue restaurant delivers a wide range of unforgettable dishes. Simply put, this Market St. venue is a staple for all those that love to eat meat in the way it was meant to be served--sweet, savory and smoky.
