CHARLESTON, SC, October 15, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Although the government shutdown is not a subject that many Americans feel worthy of celebrating, Charleston Mediterranean tapas bar Tabbuli has recognized that the event has created some interesting trends in the restaurant community. With some restaurants in the D.C. area focusing on food deals to keep furloughed employees coming in, this Charleston restaurant has found that more and more diners may be looking for opportunities to save cash amidst the current government freeze.

One of the most notable examples of the shutdown impacting the restaurant world is the story of a D.C. burger joint that recently retracted its program to offer furloughed government employees free selections during the shutdown. A recent article from The Huffington Post explains that while the free burger deal came with good intentions, the restaurant had to enact its own shutdown, as it noted it was losing out on $30,000 worth of sandwiches a day.

Down in the Lowcountry, not as many people may be missing out on work due to the shutdown, but Tabbuli continues to offer its burger to all those looking for an affordable way to dive into a delicious hamburger. In a recent press statement the restaurant comments, "The government shutdown has a lot of people--government employees or not--questioning the state of our budget. While that may not relate directly to food, we believe simple deals on food are a great way to take one's mind off these major issues and enjoy time with family and friends in a great environment."

Continuing its "$5 Burger Mondays," Tabbuli looks forward to serving all Charleston residents and visitors a taste of its menu at a price that any diner can appreciate. The restaurant's American Burger features fresh ground sirloin topped with classic favorites--cheese and bacon on a grilled roll. While the deal is great for those who want to look for a place to dine-in for lunch, dinner or happy hour, the restaurant also says it extends the offer to those who place delivery orders as well.

"Our restaurant is always aiming to please the crowd, offering exceptional drink specials, a comprehensive tapas menu, music events and the occasional belly dancers. We hope that those who want to try a delicious burger will take advantage of our $5 Burger Mondays and will venture back to sample some of our choice Mediterranean fusion cuisine," Tabbuli concludes in its press statement.

ABOUT: Located in Charleston, South Carolina, on the corner of Market and Concord, Tabbuli is one highly-rated restaurant that brings Mediterranean flair to the southern seaside. With varied brunch, lunch and dinner menus, this restaurant and hookah lounge serves as a great spot for
