

EXTON, PA, November 08, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Carol Topolski, Owner of Plato's Closet, has been selected as an Honored Member of the Covington Who's Who Executive and Professional Registry. The selection recognizes Carol Topolski's commitment to excellence in Retail.

Plato's Closet, a second-hand clothing store, opened its doors in September of 2008. Featuring gently used clothing and accessories for teens and young adults, owner Carol Topolski buys and sells shirts, jeans, athletic pants, jackets, sweatshirts, jewelry, boots, sneakers, and a variety of other seasoned and non-seasoned items.

"We offer brand names and trendy clothing and accessories for up to seventy percent off what you'd find in retail stores," Ms. Topolski said.

The trendy store, which is geared toward some of the hottest trends for boys and girls alike, also offers gift cards and gives cash on the spot for clothing sold. No appointment is necessary.

Plato's Closet is open Monday through Saturday from 10am to 9pm and Sundays from 12pm to 6pm. Located at 213 West Lincoln Highway, on the corner of Route 30 and Route 100, they are in the Whiteland Towne Center next to Kohls, Ulta, and Acme.

For more information, you can contact Topolski at 610-524-6000 or online at <http://www.platosclosetexton.com>
