DALLAS, TX, November 08, 2013 /24-7PressRelease/ -- In his new book "First Contact: Conversations With An ET" (Light Technology Publishing) Tom T. Moore states that he's been in telepathic contact since 2008 with a member of his soul group having a life on water world in the Sirius B Star System. He was quite surprised, he said, to learn just before completing the book that he is supposed to film a documentary onboard one of those mile-wide UFO motherships arriving in 2017. Mr. Moore is the CEO of an international film and TV distribution company, and his previous experience was simply acting as a co executive producer for several low budget movies and shows.

"I knew that I would be able to visit the mothership," Mr. Moore says, "which I learned has four decks and carries a crew of 850, but thought I would just be able to take photos." He says in his book he'll be allowed to have his family act as his film crew, all of whom have been involved in some way in his business. His daughter has a degree in film and worked in Los Angeles as an editor before moving back to Texas.

Mr. Moore says he was also surprised to learn that he was communicating with an amphibian. "I had previously read that the first people we would meet from the stars would look just like us, but Antura is really different!" he exclaimed. He states the closest character in science fiction would be the Abe Sapien amphibian in the Hellboy movies. In 2015, he was told, the Pleadians will arrive and they do look just like us. They will pave the way for more and more exotic beings to arrive, including the Zeta Grays—those little three-foot high characters who will apologize in 2016 for abducting almost 26,000 people a few years ago. Onboard Antura's spaceship will also be bird beings, insect beings, plant beings, different humanoids, and even a couple of reptilians.

Antura told Mr. Moore there really was a star wars two million years ago, started by the reptilians who wanted to take over other planets for their resources. The war lasted thousands of years and billions of beings lost their lives before a peace settlement was negotiated.

Other interesting facts in the book according to Mr. Moore: their spaceships travel through "portals," which science fiction films depict as a flash of light, but Antura told him is an instantaneous transfer to another portal; there is another universe next to ours that we can see in our night sky; they have devices which can translate every language in the universe; and there are twelve parallel worlds or "time lines" as has been theorized by scientists.
