

LONDON, ENGLAND, June 04, 2014 /24-7PressRelease/ -- FashionModaMode.com is the new name of the online fashion blog, previously known as Glamyou.co.uk. The new name reflects the international appeal of the blog; with its regular contributors based in Milan, London and Marrakech. The blog covers emerging designers and new trends, interior design plus fashion related news and events appealing to a readership of ABC1Women.

FashionModaMode has also undergone a complete redesign and features a stickier magazine style format. Aesthetically, the new look blog has a clean design in monochrome and bold red colour palette. The blog is responsive across mobile platforms. Content continues to be the standout feature of this fashion blog with well researched articles and fantastic imagery.

About FashionModaMode.com: FashionModaMode started out as the blogging arm of online fashion retailer <http://www.glam-net.com>. The blog has gained a following for its well-researched articles on fashion and lifestyle. The blog's main contributor is Christine Babington Smith; who also blogs for the Huffington Post UK on fashion and style.

About glam-net.com: Once upon a time, two sisters from the Worlds of digital and design decided to set up a fashion store selling beautiful clothing by exciting new designers at affordable prices. Joanne Nye, and Christine Babington Smith literally scour the Globe looking for emerging designers.

"Our travels have taken us from our base in London to Rio, Marrakech, Milan, Paris, Hong Kong, Miami, L.A. We use our industry contacts to identify hot new talent with our eyes very much on the latest trends."

Glam-net.com is evolving into an online destination for women looking for new and unique labels rather than mass market fashion.