

ATLANTA, GA, August 21, 2014 /24-7PressRelease/ -- Taproot Hydroponics & Organics (found on the web at <http://www.taproothydroponics.com>) announced today it will continue its partnership with Community Farmers Markets in Atlanta as a Grant Park Farmer's Market Vendor. Once a month, Taproot showcases a variety of organic gardening supplies to help the urban gardener plant a successful garden. In addition to providing organic gardening supplies, Taproot will be providing free consultation and tips on gardening in Georgia. The Grant Park Neighborhood and the surrounding community will be able to visit the Taproot Vendor booth to ask gardening questions and purchase plant starts grown from Non-GMO seeds using organic methods. Gardeners will also be able to purchase Cedar Planters and Certified Organic pesticides, which are safe to be used on food crops and the environment.

Taproot is proud to be a vendor at Grant Park Farmer's Market, which is managed by Community Farmers Market (CFM) of Atlanta. CFM was founded by leaders in the local food movement in Atlanta out of a demand for more efficiently managed, community-based, sustainable farmers markets. CFM has a reputation for empowering and connecting the local community through education, nutrition and sustainability and Taproot's mission of helping the local community to grow it's own food coincides with this movement.

Taproot Hydroponics & Organics is a leading provider of Organic Gardening Supplies and Indoor Gardening Supplies in the Metro-Atlanta area and the surrounding towns of Georgia. Taproot's mission is to help the community become more self-sufficient, sustainable, active and healthy through the various methods of gardening, with an emphasis on Organic gardening methods.
