

Written by Business News

---

Research has found that the number of millennials starting their own companies has significantly dropped over the last quarter. City Business Solutions investigates how America can inspire millennials to become business owners.