

Space Station Researchers Recognized for Innovation in Microgravity

Written by Business News

Based on developments over the last few years from space station research, three of the most innovative applications were recognized at the fourth annual International Space Station Research and Development Conference.