

The company announced that it's expanding it's online visibility by using new digital channels in an overall effort to make buying fishing equipment online as easy as possible for consumers.