

BELLEVUE, Wash., Oct. 1, 2013 /PRNewswire-iReach/ -- Applied Discovery today announces exceptional passing rates for kCura's Relativity Certified Administrator (RCA) exam.

Kelli Clark

, President of Applied Discovery, made the announcement during a company team-building exercise on Lake Washington.

"This exam has certainly earned a reputation for being particularly challenging, which is why we're pleased to announce that our colleagues not only excelled in their own individual efforts, but exceeded the industry norm with a remarkable 75% group passing rate," said Clark.

Doubled the National AverageRecent national averages for the arduous RCA exam typically have seen less than half of the test-takers pass on their first attempt. After posting an exceptional passing rate following the exam, Applied Discovery's class of seven newly-minted RCA-certified team members now extends across key organizations including Solutions and Services, Operations, Sales and Managed Review.

"Our 'new' team of Relativity experts speaks volumes about our commitment to our clients," said Greg Duke, Vice President of Sales and Consulting for Applied Discovery. "Our bench of talented professionals has always been deep, but now we have a significant number of Relativity experts from which our clients can draw to assist regarding their complex e-discovery matters as well."

The Applied Discovery internal training and support program fostered an environment that enabled its employees a thorough and rigorous preparation schedule to successfully pass the RCA exam.
