

Multiple Vehicle Collisions Caused By Truck Driver Errors

Written by Australian Business

HOUSTON, Dec. 24, 2013 /PRNewswire-iReach/ -- Truck drivers can be seen at any given moment traveling on the nation's highways. Drivers typically hold the assumption that truckers are well trained and operating their commercial vehicles in accordance with industry safety regulations. Sadly; however, in many cases this assumption is wrong, say the Numerous truck accidents occur each year, with a number of them involving multiple vehicles. Recently in Houston, two people were killed in a multi-vehicle collision on the North Sam Houston Tollway in which a refuse container truck crashed into a car, pinning it against a barrier, according to a FOX 26 News report.

2 deaths in Beltway 8 multi-vehicle accident

"A refuse container truck, which had a Global Waste Services, LLC logo on its trailer, crashed into one of the cars and pinned it against a concrete barrier. SkyFOX captured aerial images of the charred cab of the dump truck along with the burned car that was pinned. Harris County Precinct 4 Constable's Office is leading the investigation into what caused the accident.

truck accidents, and is also the most preventable. Truck drivers who fail to pay attention to the road due to distractions should be held accountable for their actions in the event of an accident.

Distracted Driving

"Many states are enacting laws—such as banning texting while driving, or using graduated driver licensing systems for teen drivers—to help raise awareness about the dangers of distracted driving and to keep it from occurring. However, the effectiveness of cell phone and texting laws on decreasing distracted driving-related crashes requires further study."
