

Express Auto Commercial Announces Partnership with Catholic Charities

Written by Australian Business

Express Auto Commercial's experienced on-site mobile mechanics provide superior auto services.

(PRLEAP.COM) The automotive service specialists at Express Auto Commercial announce that their on-site mechanic and Chandler towing company is now partnered with Catholic Charities to assist with the group's refugee resettlement program.

The company is no stranger to this type of assistance. Over the course of the past two years, Express Auto Commercial has helped refugees from Afghanistan, Liberia and a variety of other foreign nations during their resettlement efforts. The experts teach the refugees the basic skills needed for a successful career in the auto repair industry. Those who already have developed basic skills appreciate the more advanced skill sets they learn. Learning a new trade assists refugees who desire to assimilate into society quickly and find gainful employment.

Catholic Charities functions as a supportive network that works with refugees to rapidly and seamlessly integrate into the fabric of the United States. The organization acknowledges that the road to independence requires solid job skills that result in good employment options and the earning potential of competitive wages. Teaming up with Express Auto Commercial allows Catholic Charities to connect refugees in need of job training with an expert provider of sought-after automotive services.

Refugees come from a wide variety of nations and regions. Some have lived more than a decade in temporary refugee camps. Others have escaped from Iraq. There, they assisted the United States in the course of its military efforts. Still others have fled ethnic discrimination in Burma and Bhutan. While all refugees have their individual stories, they are united by a desire to live and work successfully in the United States. Organizations like Catholic Charities and companies like Express Auto Commercial make it possible for these dreams to become a reality.

This is the type of mobile auto repair Tempe locals can get behind!
