(PRLEAP.COM) New York, NY – Shleppers Moving & Storage, the popular New York City movers

, has announced the recent relaunch of their company website. The new website has been refashioned with a fresh design, set to improve both the aesthetics of the site and its overall user-friendliness. This comes as good news to anyone seeking solutions online for moving into, out of, or within the city of New York and its surrounding areas.

The new design simplifies and improves the old website through prominently displayed homepage links, complete with expanded drop down options. Now visitors can quickly and easily learn more about Shleppers' highly praised residential, commercial, storage, and special services, including faster access to their section of helpful tips and information on smart moving practices and more. In addition, the new layout improves user ability to request pricing quotes, by making it a centerpiece of the main page and throughout the website.

The website upgrade comes on the heels of a particularly busy and fruitful summer for the NYC moving company, as the city continues to experience record amounts of population growth. Notably, last year more people moved into the city than moved out for the first time since the 1950's. Numerous factors are cited by experts to explain the population influx, including: increased immigration from India and China, lower crime rates, and improved quality of life due to effective local reforms.

As a major player in New York City's residential and commercial moving industry, Shleppers has become a significant part of this historic time, helping thousands successfully relocate into the city. The website overhaul is part of their ongoing effort to improve customer service and meet the needs of all New Yorkers as they establish new residencies in and out of the greater New York area.

Shleppers is proud of their new website design and they recommend interested parties visit their site today to peruse their many high quality moving services, get a quick quote, read customer testimonials, enjoy expert moving tips and more.
