Crawlspace with an earthen floor can cause damage to the home and lead to potential health problems, but Mold & Moisture Solutions can prevent this contaminated air from getting inside the home.

According to the EPA and World Health Organization indoor air is two to five times more polluted than outdoor air. Much of the air we breathe in the home comes from the encapsulated crawl space. In the "stack effect" warm air rises from the crawlspace up through other levels of the home.

Unfortunately, the building codes for crawlspace vents do not allow sufficient ventilation. Homes that are subjected to a crawlspace with an earthen floor are prone to excessive damaging moisture that can cause toxic mold, harmful natural gasses such as radon, structural damage, and rodent and insects entering the home.

Mold & Moisture Solutions can completely seal the crawlspace area preventing this contaminated air from entering the home. The company's crawl space encapsulation system and mold encapsulation products are the best, time-tested approach available today. The vapor barrier system offers a continuous seamless design that is permanently installed and caulked to the foundation walls, giving homeowners the ultimate protection against mold, mildew, airborne toxins, and radon gas exposure.
