today announced that the firm would be holding a series of informative webinars on the advantages of obtaining Depository Trust Company "DTC" eligibility and the mechanics of obtaining eligibility. A necessary element for the fast, efficient trading of a public issuer's securities, DTC eligibility provides for the electronic transfer of securities following its purchase or sale. DTC eligibility negates the cumbersome, costly process of shareholders having to negotiate and have issued, physical certificates.

"DTC Eligibility is a hot topic in the microcap space," said Adam S. Tracy the firm's managing partner. "What many issuers do not understand is that obtaining DTC Eligibility does not have to be costly nor overwhelmingly complex," he added. In typical situations, DTC Eligibility can be obtained in two months or less.

The weekly DTC Eligibility webinars will provide an issuer's perspective on the process, the involvement of DTC members and the documentation requirements for applications. The webinars are open to all issuers, their representatives and other interested securities industry professionals. Information regarding attending a webinar can be obtain by calling the Securities Compliance Group or by emailing the firm.
