

Star Helicopters Offers Helicopter Flight Training to Become Certified Pilot

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) April 18, 2014 - Los Angeles, CA – Star Helicopters, the popular Los Angeles helicopter tours and charter flight company, is offering numerous helicopter pilot training programs for students seeking a wide range of certifications and ratings. The training is set to help students meet and surpass the Federal Aviation Administration's Practical Test Standards (PTS), while maintaining a calm and professional atmosphere. This comes as good news to students around the greater Los Angeles area and beyond seeking a high quality and comprehensive helicopter flight school.

The training is designed to accommodate varying and unique student's needs through one-on-one instruction. Primary flight and instrument training is done in a Robinson R-22. A Robinson R-44 is used for transition and advanced training. Students that wish to train in a turbine helicopter will learn in a Bell Jet Ranger 206B3, highly praised both for its high level of comfort and its unmatched safety record. The specialized programs, in combination with the similarities between the aircrafts, are constructed to expedite the training process and allow students the ability to rapidly advance through their ratings.

Star Helicopters offers both private and commercial pilot certification training and ratings, including:
