

Endicott Comm: How Real Estate Answering Services Give You Competitive Edge

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) April 30, 2014 - Kendall Park, NJ – Endicott Communications, a professional answering service company, understands that the real estate industry depends on around the clock communication. There is no such thing as 9-5 business hours, or the ability to leave a message after the beep. Time is of the essence; if one important call, text, or email is missed, a large sale can quickly go out the window. The best solution to creating success and eliminating missed phone calls and emails is a successful real estate answering service that can be there for a real estate company 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Endicott prides itself on being able to be there for any real estate professional's customers around the clock. They realize that customers want 24-hour access to assistance when they are in the throes of buying or selling a home. It is that simple: customers want answers now. When those answers are provided by the agents at Endicott, the customer receives knowledgeable, professional service, enhancing your brand. By helping develop your professional relationships, your clients are more liable to refer your services to friends and loved ones, giving that needed competitive edge in the real estate industry.

Endicott Communications makes it possible for real estate professionals to be accessible to their clients, no matter how busy they may be. There is no need to be tied down to the office or constantly checking a phone for missed calls. Real estate professionals that access the expertise of Endicott's answering services are able to be physically and mentally present with each of their clients, while feeling assured that the rest of their clients are effectively being handled at the same time.

Any real estate professional that would like more information about the benefits of real estate answering services can visit Endicott online or call 1-800-947-3227.

About Endicott Comm Endicott Communications, located at 3088 State Route 27, Kendall Park, NJ, offers valuable call center services in a variety of industries, including real estate. They have a dedication to excellence and work effectively with each of their clients to ensure 100 percent customer satisfaction. They use state-of-the-art technology and manage multi-channel support systems for each of their industries to help their clients be the leader in their industry.