

OStaining Expands into Custom Development With Alledia.com

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) May 8, 2014 - Open source platforms are used on over 20% of all websites. There is now a new, experienced and reliable option for companies who need help navigating the world of open source. OStaining is the leading provider of training for open source platforms such as WordPress, Joomla and Drupal.

The OStaining client list includes organizations such as the White House, the World Bank and United Nations, plus universities such as Harvard, Yale, Princeton. With experienced developers on staff, OStaining is launching Alledia as a brand for website development services.

The OStaining have seen that many companies need development help, but also need help to train their staff and increase their familiarity with open source platforms. OStaining plans to provide development services with tightly-integrated training.