About the Author: Fernando M. Caballero has been an avid fiction reader and writer all his life. The Golden Towers, which is the first book of Caballero's Lantain trilogy, came from humble beginnings on an old Olympus typewriter in early 1994 and has since been rewritten several times. The characters began as doodles in the author's old math notebook from his school days and today are preserved in a plastic binder as a reminder of how far they've come..
