

(PRLEAP.COM) "The Conspiracy Zone," a new book by Vincent Lewis, has been released by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc.

Do you believe everything that the media reports?

Any significant events that happen in the world would never escape the nosy media's news coverage. Every scandal and every heinous crime is reported relentlessly, but when official statements were released, the media most of the time will sweep it under the rug in favor of another story that people will be sure to follow.

Do you believe every account of history that you read in the books?

Every historical research printed in the books would always be from official records. Different interpretations may come once in a while through new archeological discoveries or newly released confidential papers of times past-all carefully documented facts.

Did it ever occur to you that the so-called accounts of events may have been sanitized? Do you just accept as truth anything you read in books and newspapers or see and hear in television and radio?

Most of us do, we have to admit. But there were people who don't accept everything with a grain of salt. Conspiracy theorists look beyond what is written and presented in the media, including books. They tend to see details that were overlooked and facts that were deliberately concealed. They analyze, interpret, hypothesize using these facts, and validate it as events or recent discoveries unfold.

Who should be blamed for the 9/11 World Trade Center attack or the 7/7 London bombings? Are we really sure that it was RMS Titanic that capsized into the sea in 1912? Was Princess Diana killed in an accident or was she really murdered? Are wars really fought for freedom? Why is the world plunged in financial crisis, who is responsible? Do all these things just happen or are we in fact victims of a grand design of some power-hungry people who want to create a new world order?
