

(PRLEAP.COM) "The Promise," a new book by Zouga, has been released by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc.

The journey through life is a battlefield, a constant struggle within oneself and the world outside. And while a person thinks about survival and celebration after each victory, he or she also thinks about death and what comes after it. Zouga captures the emotion in every aspect of these struggles in her poems in The Promise.

She dealt with the nostalgia for her homeland and the pressures of living in a foreign land in "The Foreigner," and the hope that tomorrow gives after failure grips us in "The Gift." In "The Sacrifice," she wrote about the pain and suffering of losing a loved one in death from senseless crime, while she explored what she thought might be the obstacles involved in the voyage a dead person's spirit toward eternal life in heaven in "The Shaft."

Her poems also reflect love, virtue, and loyalty, all leading at some point to self-discovery and value of life in the universe governed by God.

About the Author: A native of Gabon, Zouga is currently dividing her time between her family and studies. She is also a member of a poetry club, and the poems she wrote for this book are based on her personal experience of losing her sisters and father.

"The Promise" is a 42-page paperback with a retail price of $10.00. The ISBN is 978-1-4349-1623-5. It was published by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.
