

Fresno Author Publishes New Book about Nigerian History

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) "Cow without Tail," a new book by Godwin Boswell Akubue, has been released by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc. Until the lions produce their own historians, the story of the hunt will glorify only the hunter.

This saying lamented by Albert Achebe, a renowned Igbo writer, leads the direction of this carefully researched book about the connections of the Igbo people and culture to their assumed ancestors, the Jews.

Godwin Akubue tackles the various areas that connect the Igbo people of Nigeria-customs, beliefs, genealogy, etymology, etc.-to their long lost brethren of the past following the Diaspora, which drove ten out of the twelve Israeli tribes out of the holy land. In an unbiased manner, Akubue lays out every piece of evidence culled out from books, publications, speeches, and works of other people believing that the Igbo of Nigeria are descendants of the Jews.

Cow without Tail, by Godwin Boswell Akubue, is a treatise building the case of the lost tribe of Israel on their longed-for Jewry recognition.

About the Author:Godwin Boswell Akubue is an educated man in several areas of science, including chemistry, laboratory science, and medical science. Fifty-four now, he lives in Fresno, California, with his wife, Monica, and his four children, namely, Augusta, Justice, Hope, and Promise. Being part of community organizations and clubs does not deprive him time for his hobbies like listening to folk music, doing adventures, playing chess, and of course, writing. He has written several cultural essays in local and international journals, and this one is specially made to help define a true Igbo identity in Nigeria.

"Cow without Tail" is a 308-page paperback with a retail price of $38.00. The ISBN is 978-1-4349-1539-9. It was published by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.
