UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif., Jan. 13, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- From Dr. Ruth to Penthouse Forum and the countless other media sources constantly discussing sex, you probably thought you had heard everything about the subject. But secure your chastity belts and lay off the Viagra because a new improvisational game show will have you laughing right out of your knickers.

The new live show called, What Do You Know? has been described as a cross between "Who's Line Is it Anyway?" and "Jeopardy." It features a panel of four quick-witted comedians who are challenged with questions about various subjects. Of course, they are not always the most informed panelists but that does not discourage them from offering answers fast and furiously in order to win the game. Why? Because, funny answers are given more points than right answers in this battle of improv wits. And while those answers will have you doubled over, the real answers will stun and amaze you. This is smart comedy at its very best.

What Do You Know will have it's Universal City premier live at 8pm on January 23, 2014, at the Jon Lovitz Comedy Club and Podcast Theatre, upstairs at Universal City Walk. The show will also be broadcast on the Internet via Jon Lovitz ' new comedy channel.

Join the host and creator, Steve Frech, and the panelists as they play all new rounds that explore the downright bizarre facts, statistics, and myths behind the only reason that any of us are here! The panelists are What Do You Know "allstars," featuring Lauren Lapkus from the hit shows Orange is the New Black
