Humans are in a unique position from any other beings on this planet. We feel, we think, we have the ability to wish and dream. More than anything, humans search for a fulfilling life, one of satisfaction, but we often do not know how to attain this goal.

"Satisfaction and Service" offers a way to achieve real success in this world. Through Tika Ram Dhungana's own experiences, and that of his parents struggling for eighteen years in a refugee camp, he offers words of wisdom about the overarching structure of the world and the ways in which people can positively influence it, leading to real success through God's work of service in this world. Only by serving others can we achieve real success in our lives; only by being at peace with this world can we feel satisfied.
