

Palm Beach Author Publishes Sequel

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) "Antivion," a new book by Richard Sills, has been released by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc.

"Antivion" is an innovative work of creative fiction that explores spirituality and personal evolution through the experiences of two engaging characters, Norma and Surooval. Moving through time and space, Norma leads her fiancé on an amazing journey that brings him toward an understanding of God and the nature of love. Surooval-and through him, each reader-comes to see the meaning of experience and learns to trust that love will indeed conquer all as God guides us in the most positive way toward our future happiness.

"Antivion" is the sequel to "Lanethros."

About the Author: Educator, computer scientist, and humorist Richard Sills was named Educator of the Decade for his experimental use of children as teachers. Artwork from his experiment was displayed throughout New York City in the late 1970s and he received extensive publicity at the time. He ran a humorous campaign for President of the United States as the "Children's Party" write-in candidate in the 1980s. As a computer scientist he holds five patents in computer systems and has developed the means to create a sentient "thinking computer." Mr. Sills is the founding sponsor of the Walter and Leonore Annenberg Presidential Learning Center at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library and Museum in Simi Valley, California.

"Antivion" is a 104-page hardcover with a retail price of $21.00. The ISBN is 978-1-4809-0902-1. It was published by Dorrance Publishing Co., Inc of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.
