

FRANKFURT, Germany, September 11, 2013 /PRNewswire/ --

In August 2013, Fraport AG served nearly 5.8 million passengers at its home base Frankfurt Airport (FRA) - a 3.6 percent rise year-on-year and a new record month in the history of FRA. Besides market growth, this significant increase resulted from special effects such as strike-related flight cancellations at the end of August 2012. Also, the number of aircraft movements dropped by 0.6 percent to 42,441, as airlines adjusted the timetable for passenger and cargo flights. Cargo traffic rose by 1.5 percent to 173,905 metric tons, while accumulated maximum takeoff weights (MTOWs) grew slightly to nearly 2.6 million metric tons (up 0.1 percent). Thus, FRA achieved a new August record for MTOWs as well as punctuality (86 percent).

Commenting on the latest traffic figures, Fraport's executive board chairman (CEO) Dr. Stefan Schulte concluded: "We are pleased about the growth in cargo and especially passenger traffic. I would like to thank our staff for the diligent and hard work in ensuring excellent punctuality rates during the busy summer holiday season. Without their commitment, Frankfurt Airport would not have been able to reach record traffic levels." However, Schulte also underscored the challenges facing the company at FRA: "Airlines have consolidated their flight offers in reaction to market uncertainties precipitated by the European debt crisis affecting certain countries. Furthermore, the aviation tax in Germany has hampered travel demand, creating a disadvantage vis-à-vis European competitors." For the entire year 2013, Fraport expects the passenger volume at Frankfurt to be similar to last year's figure. The ongoing scheduling for the upcoming 2013/14 winter timetable gives positive indications that the airlines will increase seat capacity via Frankfurt slightly.
