

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12, 2013 /PRNewswire/ -- After the seizure of Liberty Reserve, UnlimitedPrivacy.com has just introduced the new go-to alternative, as a safe, convenient and user-friendly platform for sending and receiving payments over the web anonymously. But that's only the tip of the iceberg: registered members have access to a host of powerful features, making the service a one-stop shop for freelancers, small businesses, or anyone who regularly needs to send or receive money online. Also setting its services apart from competitors such as PerfectMoney.com, UnlimitedPrivacy.com accepts both U.S. and international clients.

"Our mission with UnlimitedPrivacy.com has been to offer individuals and businesses around the world an anonymous, reliable, and secure platform for sending and receiving payments," explained its CEO and founder. "Naturally, the operation of the site conforms to all applicable laws and regulations; while promoting user privacy as one of its core values. More importantly, we see UnlimitedPrivacy.com as a robust challenger to traditional, brick-and-mortar banking systems."

The recent shuttering of Liberty Reserve, the former standard bearer and pioneer of the industry, has left behind a vacuum in the realm of anonymous online payments. UnlimitedPrivacy.com steps into that vacuum, offering a trustworthy alternative to traditional, bank-mediated payment methods.

According to the CEO, the potential user base of the new platform is broad, with plenty of opportunity for growth. "Computer enthusiasts have made up the core of the early adopters of anonymous online payment systems. Now we're at the tipping point where more people are becoming aware of the technology and seeing its advantages."

Registration for an UnlimitedPrivacy.com account is easy and straightforward, requiring only the most essential information. From the dashboard, members can manage every detail of their account.

Registered users of UnlimitedPrivacy.com can also sign up for the Affiliate Program and earn passive income. Free to join, the Affiliate Program returns 10% of all fees collected throughout the life each referred member; the only limitation being the number of successful user referrals. Commissions are deposited instantly into affiliates' accounts.

UnlimitedPrivacy.com offers a variety of funding options, including BitCoin and international exchangers. All of these options help make the service truly borderless. Users can begin accepting payments the moment they register. An instant payment notification feature sends a message to users' email account whenever new funds are deposited. Opening an account and sending money with the service is free; receiving money incurs a nominal 1% plus .01 cent fee, compared to PayPal's service charge of 2.9% plus a .30 cent fee.

For web developers, UnlimitedPrivacy.com also features an application programming interface (API), enabling customization of the look and function of the service for use on their own sites. The payment platform can integrate seamlessly into any ecommerce storefront or function as an escrow account for service providers.

UnlimitedPrivacy.com Team invites individuals and businesses to take their service on a test drive, and to explore all of the site's useful features. With so many hours dedicated to its development, they're confident that the new platform is more than the equal of any competitor. Unlike many other online wallets, UnlimitedPrivacy.com promises users that accounts will never be frozen or suspended for any reason.
