

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26, 2013 /PRNewswire-USNewswire/ -- The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency will host two workshops in Little Rock, Ark., at the Peabody Little Rock, Nov. 5-6, for directors of national community banks and federal savings associations.

The "Risk Assessment for Directors" and "Compliance Risk: What Directors Need to Know" workshops are designed exclusively for directors of institutions supervised by the OCC. The risk assessment workshop focuses on the OCC's approach to risk-based supervision and ways directors can effectively measure, monitor, identify, and control risks. The compliance risk workshop focuses on major compliance risks and consumer protection regulations, as well as critical elements of an effective compliance risk management program. Both workshops are taught by seasoned OCC supervision staff.

The fee is $99 for each workshop. Participants receive a pre-workshop reading package, course materials, and assorted supervisory publications. Each workshop is limited to the first 35 registrants.

These workshops are among 37 being offered nationwide in 2013 to enhance and expand the skills of community bank directors. For information, including a complete list of available workshops, or to register for a workshop, visit <https://www.seiservices.com/occ/> or call (240) 485-1700.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency ("OCC") charters and oversees a nationwide system of national banks and federal savings associations and assures that these banking institutions are safe and sound, competitive, and capable of serving the banking needs of their customers in the best possible manner.
