

Premier Launches New Premier Access to Meet Changing Needs of Today's Workforce

Written by Australian Business

IRVINE, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Premier Business Centers , the country's largest privately owned provider of executive suite space, recently introduced Premier Access, designed for small businesses, startups, home workers and others who want the use of premium office space without the expense of a full-time office.

Premier Access was developed in direct response to the changing needs of today's workers and offers four plans in Bronze, Silver, Gold and Platinum, depending on usage. Shared space starts at $199 per month with increasing levels of private office use from $299-$499 per month. Each plan includes a choice of any of Premier's convenient, prestigious locations throughout the country as well as internet access and a kitchen with complimentary gourmet coffee and teas.

Premier Access accommodates the new trends in how people work, giving thousands of business people access to prime office space who don't need or cannot afford the overhead associated with fixed-location businesses.

"Home and mobile workers are on the rise, and Premier Access is the perfect solution for entrepreneurs who run their business primarily from home, on site with clients, or on the go," says Premier's Sales and Marketing Senior Vice President Mark Burge. "All you have to do is pick up the phone and get an executive office for the day or for as many days as you wish. Our goal is to work with clients in any way they need us to. Premier Access is just another example of our firm's trademark flexibility and highly personalized services," Burge adds.
