( PRLEAP.COM ) Anaheim Hills, Calif. – September 24th, 2013 – onthenetOffice, a leader in the hosted desktop industry, announced the launch of its newly redesigned corporate website. The new website features improved functionality, a more intuitive design and improved content that solidifies the company's brand identity.

"onthenetOffice has always had a very clear, distinct set of services," CEO Alexander Saca said. "Our new website does a great job at displaying the unique benefits that set onthenetOffice apart from our competitors."

The new onthenetOffice website clearly establishes the company as a leading provider of hosted desktops, with content detailing unique aspects of the business's solution, such as their seamless migration process; SMX Speed Technology which is, according to the website, "a combination of advanced technologies, protocols, and best practices" developed by onthenetOffice engineers that allow the company to provide clients with the fastest hosted desktops available on the market; 4-D Security (a unique, multi-level approach to security that has been designed to ensure the highest levels of protection for their clients' infrastructures); and a high level of customization. And because onthenetOffice is not limited to just hosted desktop solutions, another section of the website provides information on their abundance of other hosted services.

The redesigned website has a new, simplified layout that makes the site easier to navigate. Visitors to the new website will be able to access everything they need to know about onthenetOffice effortlessly, whether it is information on hosted desktops or other services, easy-to-access support, testimonials from satisfied customers or informative downloadable files.

"Our team has worked very hard over the last few months to develop new, engaging content and a sleek new design that convey who we are, what we do and why we are the best," Saca said. "All of our departments (marketing, sales, technical and administrative) worked collaboratively to provide a website that is informative, easy to navigate and aesthetically pleasing; things we know potential clients are looking at when they visit a website. I am very proud of our whole staff and all the work they have put into making this site what it is today. Our website and all of our communication platforms will continue to evolve and improve to reflect what our company delivers and stands for."
