

Micronet Selects Hydra's eTask-it to Manage its Project Management Office

Written by Australian Business

(PRLEAP.COM) Farnborough, UK – Micronet part of Ikusi Group, specializes in business consulting and technology and in the design and installation of telecommunications solutions. To manage its Project Management Office, Micronet selected Hydra's eTask-it solution.

"We are very proud of having been selected by Micronet," says Juan Manrique, CEO of Hydra "Micronet is a great company working with innovative technologies and a perfect match for eTask-it. Our focus is always to help companies to be more efficient and transparent in the way they manage their projects and processes. We will work closely with Micronet to support their implementation because we strongly believe that software is only part of the solution but it's the culture and the commitment of an organization that really make the difference."

eTask-it was selected because it is the only project management software that has a module that properly manages methodologies and frameworks and is configurable by projects. Micronet serves different types of projects and clients, and the versatility of eTask-it from Hydra is an added value for the company and its customers. It was also vital for Micronet that their project management tool integrates with other management systems, which eTask-it was able to do, enabling many tasks to be automated through integration with other systems.

According to Gabriel A. Diaz Ibarra, PMO Execution Manager of Micronet, "Local Latin implementation team was also a major factor in selecting Hydra for our project management office needs. Having a local Latin America implementation team that understand perfectly our business culture, is a significant advantage."
