

Valentine's meeting place for horse lovers

(P

RLEAP.COM

) There can be a huge difference between people from the city and those living in the country. Those singles living in the country often love horses whether it is simply riding or all out competing. Another important fact is that people who love horses are typically pretty passionate about that and want to meet others that share their passion. Enter

www.horseloversdating.co.uk

. This is the premier dating website for those singles that want to connect in a way that includes their love of the country and horses.

Horse Lovers Dating is one of the busiest UK dating websites for people that love both horses and the countryside. This includes those singles that are farmers and country dwellers in rural Britain. Men and women are seeking dates with others that love a walk in the country or enjoy country living with members that can be found on this site. Farmers, horse riders, horse lovers and those singles that just enjoy interacting with animals are encouraged to give this dating site a shot.

Members of this website are singles that either reside in the country or they simply love the environment and want to date someone living there. Having been around for several years, it is little wonder that it boasts a healthy database of members living all over rural UK. It is completely free to register at Horse Lovers Dating and enjoy a basic membership there.

Features of the website include uploading profiles and photos for free as well as searching for other members that are matches. The first message sent at no charge and is communicated through the site's icebreaker system. While the various membership packages are not listed as to the price, there are several features that make the website a fun place to visit. These include such things as sending virtual gifts to other members, receiving updates regularly of new member notifications, and receiving immediate notifications of compatible members joining. Members can also maintain their own private personal dating blog or journal as well as advertise events that are farm, horse or sports related. Video profiles are offered so that members can more easily show their personalities.

Where Countryside Singles Who Love Horses Find Love on Valentine's Day

Written by Australian Business

This is a dating site that is open to anyone that loves horses, the countryside, carriage driving, horse racing, horse riding, polo playing and any other equine related activity. The chat rooms of this site are filled with singles from rural areas that love the country as well as horses where they talk about related sports, farming, county shows, horse auctions and various other country topics.

Members also don't have to be searching for dates. Many of the current members registered simply to expand their social lives. Residents from England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales can be found on Horse Lovers Dating.

As mentioned earlier, the registration and basic membership to this website is gained at no charge. Many new members are attracted weekly so there's an excellent chance to find someone interesting here for dating and friendship, or just sharing information about how much they love horses.

There is a lot of data appearing here that has been collected for the members' reading pleasure. Visitors to the site will discover some facts, fiction, legends, stories, myths and tips about both horses and ponies that will have them completely delighted. Yes, this is a website that brings singles sharing a common interest together but that isn't really everything that it has to offer. Some people just visit the site to find helpful information regarding horses. That's why plenty of tips and tutorials are also stored here. These include such things as horse riding basics and other fascinating information found just by visiting the blogs .

A friendlier group of people cannot be found anywhere as visitors to Horse Lovers Dating will soon discover. No matter what these country loving singles are searching for when they visit this website, they are sure to find it and much more. According to members' testimonials, they have found a second home at this site. Many members that have connected with their soul mates here have remained registered to still be able to chat with friends they made on the site. Now, that's saying a lot about the website's quality members.