

Time Doctor Launches Basecamp Integration

Written by Australian Business

Time doctor is proud to announce the release of a new feature, "Basecamp Integration", that will make project management a breeze.

(
PRLEAP.COM

)

April 1, 2014:

Time doctor

is proud to announce the release of a new feature, "Basecamp Integration", that will make project management a breeze. With this exciting innovation, managers and their teams will be able to manage projects and tasks more efficiently while keeping everything on schedule. Project leaders will finally be able to track how much time individuals spend on specific tasks, as well as integrate their priority list with their Google Calendar so task lists can be effectively coordinated and completed.

Rob, co-founder of Time Doctor, says on the Basecamp Integration: "As an avid user of Basecamp, I greatly appreciate its benefits, yet Basecamp still lacks one important feature, and this is how much time is spent on certain projects. Our integration will help fill this gap and help people to be more productive when using Basecamp."

As a leader in time tracking software, Time Doctor stands heads above the rest. It is interactive, precise, and more accurately depicts what is actually being accomplished in a given time slot. And according to Alexa, Basecamp is the #1 pr

object management software

because of its unparalleled simplicity of use and efficient task list management. Now by integrating its features with the seamless time tracking features of Time Doctor, users have the ideal project management software and in one.

time monitoring software

About Time Doctor: this 20 person team spanning eight countries is dedicated to helping individuals and organizations be more productive, while minimizing distractions, so users can fulfill the goals, plans, and projects that are important to them. Timedoctor helps dramatically improve business processes by analyzing where time is spent, and is an effective tool to manage remote workers, just as if they were in the same office, thereby maximizing productivity and profits! For a full list of features, plans and pricing, visit their website, follow them on Facebook

, or email them at

liam@timedoctor.com

Time Doctor Launches Basecamp Integration

Written by Australian Business
