

McObject has released version 6.0 of its eXtremeDB In-Memory Database System (IMDS) and related product family. The upgrade adds distributed query processing, which accelerates performance via parallel execution of database operations and by harnessing the capabilities of many host computers rather than just one. Additional new features include